Shop Warren!

-- DURING --

This coming weekend will be festival days in Warren with the merchants and local activity groups setting up sidewalk booths to offer shoppers a variety of merchandise besides making it fun to shop. The blocking off of streets from Liberty from Pa. ave. to Third and from Second down to Loblaw's parking lot, will create a plaza type shopping section. Free parking is offered in all municipal lots. Benson's Liberty St. parking lot will be used for a display of new model cars during the two days.

Bogus money is being given by participating merchants and this may be used for bidding in the street auction Saturday, Oct. 8, at 4 p.m. in front of the United Cigar Store. For every dollar purchase a customer is presented with a denomination bill worth ten cents. A 1961 Falcon plus many other valuable items will go to the highest bidders at the auction.

OBSERVATIONS

By Bob Walsh

THE DAM MUST BE IN

When the leading electric utility of the area suddenly decides it wants to make use of a public dam it becomes obvious that the battle is lost by those who oppose the structure. The Penelec and the Warren Electric Cooperative, Inc. have teamed up to ask for permits to study the possibilities of a joint effort to use Allegheny river dam for power purposes.

This is called unprecedented we suppose because a cooperative and a hard-shelled private industry are working together on a joint project The cooperative would build a plant to use the run-of-river-flow and the Penelec would use coal to augment low-season flow.

If there is any industry in the nation which opposes public dams it is the electric power group. When any portion of this industry asks to have a part in a dam you can be sure that the facility has overcome its usual opposition, both apparent and behind the scenes.

We propose that a very long look be taken before we rush into any project involving private power hooked up with the Cornplanter dam. We say this because it was not the original purpose of this dam either to provide power or to prevent floods. The primary purpose was to control the water's content and to provide multiple use advantages.

One simple example is the have two choices. Either we can release the water from the top or from the bottom. Many are urging the bottom method because the water is much colder and will provide a variety of fishing in the river such as we never have experienced.

But the release of that water will be affected by power plans. These, of course, can be circumvented, but if those who see the dam as a great attraction for all who are looking for outdoor sport, and will spend millions of dollars in this area every year, wish to assure the utmost utilization of such a potential, the electric power plans should be examined very closely and must conform in such a way that broad use of the dam, the lake, and the many miles of improved river downstream will not be adversely affected.

It amuses us that one of the arguments presented in favor of the power plan is that it will use Pennsylvania coal. We always have considered water power as a means of conserv-

The difference between a plant which is solely dependent on coal and one that is not is the full time use of coal by one and the saving of coal by the other through its water system in months when the water is in sufficient supply.

For over twenty years this writer has been pounding out articles on the dam. For over twenty years he has been seeking out authorities on electric power and water use. He has met the supporters and the opposition on all levels.

It now seems strange that the private power interests suddenly believe that this is a practical means of supplying electricity for its many customers. According to the census-takers, Warren county's population has not changed enough to have any meaning other than our proclivity for standing still Thus if power from the dam is a good idea today, why was it not even more so ten, fifteen, and twenty years ago when power plants dependent on coal were even more crude than they are today?

It suggests that some of the opposition to the dam has come from the usual quarters, even though it may have been quietly accomplished. It also suggests that the opposition may be giving up and now wants to make the most of the dam for its own purposes.

If this is not so why have we plan for water release. We not seen support for the dam strongly presented by private power down through the years? It would have been a great help if we could have had engineers saying that this dam would give us flood control, pollution reduction, a varied recreation program, and electric power.

The next ones we may hear from are the navigation enthusiasts. Suddenly it may occur to them that an adequate flow of water in the place of the 1.2-foot level we have seen in September will help float boats. And boats, if we are not misinformed, are a major part of navigation.

We also may hear from the clean streams group, which is about as useless and as blind an organization as you will find existing in these parts. It actually has opposed the dam because it hasn't been able to see that more water will mean a cleaner river. If they suddenly climb the bandwagon we are apt to feel so crowded and uncomfortable that we will gladly give up our seat to the current crop of bowers and scrapers who are about to point with pride to that monument to progress, as you no doubt will hear it described in various windy bits of bombast soon to come.

Welcome aboard, mates, but let us keep alert to the real purpose of this ship we sail, less we scuttle it in the first rough sea and come about with no more than a scow. Improvements and full use we do want, but every change and adjustment should be studied well.

"Let's Pick A Date - After Which Neither One Of Us Will Discuss Religion"

Khrush Does Us A Favor

By Inez Robb

There was a time when I was tempted to go out, by dark of night, and calk on the walls of New York: "Khrushchev Go Home!"

But it becomes more apparent daily what a short-sighted policy that would have been. If he really intends to stay here to see the New Year in, so much the better. Day by day in every way since his arrival, Mr. Khrushchev and his swarming satellites have unwittingly been the best argument extant for the democratic way of life.

Behind the Iron Curtain Khrushchev's disregard of even the basic amenities of life and his contempt for decent manners, which make possible communication between men, can be veiled from world-wide exposure about 99 percent of the time.

But during the current session of the U. N. General Assembly the basic brutishness of the man has been on display day after day. Every time this gross man crudely interrupts a speaker, as he did Prime Minister Macmillan, and every time he leads the Communist drum chorus by pounding noisily on his desk when some speaker displeases him, he adds another cubit to the stature of the free world.

"Who takes their nammers from the Ape, Their habits from the Bear, Indulge the loud unseemly jape, And never brush their hair.'

This quatrain is a favorite from "Bad Child's Book of Beasts" by Hilaire Belloc, who seems not only to have anticipated Khrushchev but also Fidel.

By taking his public manners from the ape and his habits from the bear, Khrushchev has done as much to cause the new nations of Africa and the neutral ones of the Near, Middle and Far East to re-examine their relations with communism as have his attacks against the United Nations and Secretary General Hammarskjold.

To many new and small nations, their membership in the United Nations is the most treasured status symbol they possess. And, to an equal number, good manners equate with civilization and culture. Khrushchev by his gross contempt of both the U.N. and of a decent standard of conduct has done more to advance our cause than anyone dared hope when the General Assembly meeting

So I am completely out of sympathy with Vox Pop who continues to write letters to the newspapers decrying the presence of Khrushchev and his minions in the United States. My only prayer is that they continue in their offensive routine, alarming the neutral nations and scaring the bejabbers out of the uncommitted ones.

The self-exposure of the Communist bloc at the General Assembly has been a thing of beauty and may yet be a joy forever to the democratic side.

Who, after Castro's four-and-ahalf-hour speech before the Assembly, with its fulgent praise of communism and Khrushchev, and his mutual admiration meetings with the Russian, can ever again believe that Fidel and his chicken-picken' hands aren't dedicated 110 percent to the Communist cause?

And what irony there is in Khrushchev's request to the New York police, whose vigilant guardianship he has been protesting, for protection in at least one quarter. Hehas given orders that he is not to be bothered by and will not receive any of the many refugees here who are begging for a chance to ask the Russian Premier to permit a wife, children or parents behind the Iron Curtain to come to the United States.

So far, the Khrushchev performance at the U. N. has constituted a much-needed plus for our side. Far from chasing him home, I favor giving him more rope.

DISEASE-FREE GERANIUMS

By next spring you should be able to buy geraniums which are disease-free, though they may be available in limited quantities.

They have been developed by the Penn State Department of Botany and Plant Pathology.

Several varieties have been released to commercial growers and the supply will be increased by greenhouse florists for sale next spring. They are free of bacterial stem-rot.

WE WAIT WITH DOUBT

We note that there is much talk about no increase in the prices of many 1961 automobiles and in fact we have seen one list which shows the figures to be identical with that charged for many models of the same

We hope this is true, and we see no reason why it shouldn't be, but we have been through the experience of writing such announcements in previous years, after looking at similar lists.

But when the buyer got down to cases, things had changed by spring.

This time we hope it stays that way. It also suggests that perhaps this is a good time to buy a car.

WEIGHT-REDUCING QUESTIONED

The Federal Trade Commission charges Mary-Mac, Inc., of Dallas, Texas, with making false weight-reduction and muscle-toning claims for its vibrating devices. It sells vibrating equipment and furniture, ranging from cushions to mattresses, and from chairs to tables (now there is a neat place to vibrate).

BIBLE SCHOOLS

Three affiliated concerns have been charged by the F.T.C. with using misrepresentation to sell correspondence and home study courses in Bible, theology, and philosophy.

"Cited in the FTC's complaint are The Colonial Academy, Inc., The Pioneer Theological Seminary, and National Association of Bible Schools, Inc., all of 122 Concord Ave., Rockford, Also named were the concerns' officials, Verna L., Carl C. and Robert J. Hansen. The latter also does business as Standard Research Institute and National Board of Theological Examiners.

"The complaint alleges that respondents have falsely represented in advertising and otherwise that Colonial Academy and Pioneer Seminary are non-profit residence schools with a trained faculty to teach properly accredited undergraduate and graduate courses in Bible, theology and philosophy. In reality, the complaint says, Colonial and Pioneer are corporations engaged in the sale for profit of correspondence and home study courses and diplomas.

"Contrary to other claims, the complaint charges that National Association of Bible Schools is not a recognized accrediting agency for Bible schools, but is, a corporation organized by the individual respondents to accredit their own correspondence schools for the purpose of attempting to give them respectability.

"A further allegation is that respondents' honorary diplomas are not conferred for educational or ministerial achievement, as claimed, but are given to anyone willing and able to pay for them."

FALSE DRUG ADVERTISING

The National Drug Plan, Inc. of Washington, which sells drugs, prescriptions, and pharmaceuticals by mail, has been charged with false advertising.

"The FTC's complaint against the company and its president, Aaron Abranson, alleges they do not sell only to "select Occupation Groups" but to everyone.

"Also challenged is the claim that on prescriptions and vitamins participants save 25% to 50% from the price they would have to pay in their respective communities.

"According to the complaint, purchasers of prescriptions cannot save any stated amount as costs differ in different localities depending upon the brand of drugs used and the amount added for professional services in compounding the prescriptions.

"Purported savings on vitamins are based on fair trade prices, which are substantially higher than the amounts at which vitamins can be purchased in the many non-fair trade localities, the complaint alleges.

"Contrary to other claims, the complaint states, the company does not operate on a volume basis, many prescriptions are not compounded by it but are purchased from others, the District of Columbia does not inspect pharmacies, and the company cannot fill all prescriptions since those containing narcotics cannot be sent through the mails."

THE NEUTRALIST INTERVENTION

By Walter Lippmann

The intervention of the five neutrals, which was made last Friday, has for its object the renewal of diplomatic contact, now broken, between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. As a means of accomplishing this, the neutrals ask "as a first urgent step" the renewal of contact between Mr. Eisenhower and Mr. Khrushchev. This has been interpreted as meaning personal contact, a face-to-face reconciliation between the two men, and some remarks of Mr. Nkrumah support this interpretation.

But the draft resolution offered by the five neutrals is carefully worded. It does not specifically call for personal contact. Its purpose would be realized if official diplomatic contact were restored, and to this the President in his statement on Sunday agreed.

The door is, therefore, open unless Mr. K. slams it shut and locks and bolts it.

In emphasizing the distinction between personal contact and diplomatic contact, we shall, I believe, be thinking realistically. Since the U-2 and the aftermath at Paris in May, Mr. K. has conducted a violent feud against Mr. Eisenhower personally. The crucial question is whether this irreconcilable personal feud is separate from or is part of an irreconcilable and lasting feud between the Soviet Union and the United States.

The neutrals assume, or at least they hope, that the personal feud is transitory, and that underneath it there still exists the possibility of and the need for negotiations. For my own part, I am not sure that they are right, that is to say right in believing that if the personal feud were healed, negotiation would be resumed. I hope they are right. But there are some disturbing signs that since the U-2, which was a personal humiliation for Mr. K., there has been a real change of course in Soviet policy. But, be that as it may, the neutrals are right in refusing to accept the defeatist view that diplomatic negotiation cannot be renewed.

The neutrals will be wiser, it seems to me, not to emphasize, not to press too hard for, a personal meeting. Both men have been humiliated, Khrushchev by the avowal that we had some kind of right to fly over his territory, Mr. Eisenhower by the insults heaped upon him. Both men were angry. They cannot forgive and forget. They cannot be expected to meet and talk away their quarrel and shake hands. Nothing can be done with this quarrel except to outlive it.

What can be done, however, is to restore diplomatic contact at lower levels. Even this cannot be done quickly because Mr. Gromyko and Mr. Herter dare not forget or forgive the quarrel of their chiefs.

The U. N. is faced with the question of whether the Eisenhower-Khrushchev quarrel will be 'prolonged into the next Administration. It may be. We cannot be sure that Mr. K. is not on a new line -- one of intransigent cold war. It is also possible that the candidates may talk themselves into a box where they are in honor bound to continue the feud -- to show how brilliantly they can stand up to Mr. K. by making it impossible to sit down with him.

If so, the prospect is dark. An irreparable break which split the world, which broke the United Nations, might not lead to war, but it would surely lead to widespread disorder and violence in all the continents and to a condition of profound and universal uneasiness. It is the duty of the nations which are not directly involved in the feud to bring about diplomatic contacts. They will probably not lead to any quick results. But they may make it possible to continue diplomatic intercourse after the personal feud has receded into the past. This may not be easy to do. But the U.N. should not grow weary of trying and it should not walk away from this, the central problem of the world.

For the future will be intolerable for all mankind if the two greatest powers are not even on speaking terms.

Burglars Routed By Gas And Patrolman

A tear gas bomb, designed specifically to release gas under about 500 pounds of pressure when punctured, chased a pair of would-be safe-crackers from the Oneida Lumber Co. sometime Monday morning. The pair then are presumed to have attempted to "crack" the safe at the East Side Fruit and Produce Co., where they were again routed, this time by a police patrolman on a routine beat.

Officer Keith Ludwig, riding alone in a patrol car, was making a check of the doors at the fruit firm when he thought he noticed a face at the window. After summoning help from the second squad car on duty, the police entered the building and found a bag containing unused drills and three bent drift pins, plus a two-pound sledge hammer.

Upon further scrutiny of the building, an opened door was discovered through which the burglars probably made their escape. It was suspected that the pair may have had a lookout during their stay in the build-

Charles Nelson, an employee of the Oneida Lumber Co., discovered the tampered-with safe about 7 a.m. Monday morning as he was coming to work. Nelson entered the room, but was forced back by the tear gas which had driven off the burglars.

Investigations of the incidents are currently being conducted by the Borough and State police departments.

Symbol of the Sixties

"Symbol of the Sixties - More Women at Work" is the theme of the 1960 National Business Women's Week, which is being observed October 2-8. National Business Women's Week is set aside yearly to pay tribute to women in business and the professions and to the contribution they make to the nation.

It is a remarkable fact of current history that in the business and professional world of civic and public affairs on all community through international levels women have achieved far more than our most advanced thinking grandmothers ever dreamed. Millions of women are now at work in offices, schools, factories and on farms. Millions more are learning new professions, exploring new fields, creating new ideas. In truth, women now number more than a third of the work force in the United States. Young women chose from 500 different career fields now instead of the dozen or so job areas of a decade ago. And young women can now expect to work outside the home approximately twenty-five years of their lives.

All women - young and more mature - are using their qualities of compassionate and imaginative resourcefulness to make their communities, states and nation better places. Women to-day are alert to the necessity of preserving civilization and freedom in the world.

Working to-gether to serve the best interests of the greatest number of individuals has always been the democratic way

THE BUSINESS WOMEN are to be saluted and especially so during this, their 32nd Anniversary of National Business Women's Week.

Over those 32 years business and industry have come to realize that working women have earned the tribute they receive and have earned equality as citizens because of their willingness to accept common responsibilities in business, and, just as importantly, to participate with judgment and purpose in the vital area of public affairs.

It is clearly evident that the Business and Professional Woman's voluntary organization has rightfully earned its position of leadership in the advancement of the interests and status of American women in business.

The Playcan work is admittedly and definitely contemporary. It is conservative in the sense that the artist believes in representational form and sound craftmanship, and he still finds challenge and pleasure in using the familiar world around him as subject material.

Despite a heavy teaching schedule, Plavcan is a prolific painter. The show now being presented at Thiel, is completely different than the one he presented two years ago. Some of the twenty-seven paints were seen in his one-man show in Philadelphia last spring, but a number of new pieces has been added since that time, the best known of which is "Edge of the City" already exhibited in the National Exhibition of the Butler Institute of American Art in Youngstown during the sum-

Auto Mishap Adds Two To County Death Toll

Sunday morning at approximately 1:30 a.m. a car with two Bemus Point residents crashed on Route 957, ten miles north of Warren, taking the lives of the occupants. The deaths were numbers eleven and twelve on the county roads since January 1 in a total of nine fatal acci-

Assumed to be killed instantly in the crash was the operator of the vehicle, Jack Weber Marrs, age 23, of R.D. 1, Bemus Point. His companion, Donna Jean Nickerson, 16, of the same address, died in Warren General, where she was taken by the Russell ambulance, at about 7:30

Roy Lindell, of R. D. 2 Akeley, found the demolished auto in a field off Route 957 approximately five hours after the affixed time of the mishap. The ambulance and Trooper George Kaleina, of the Warren State Police barracks, were immediately called to the scene.

Marrs was traveling west on the road at a high rate of speed, as indicated by the length of the skid marks, when his auto cussion of the rights now held missed a slight curve in the road. The machine left the highway, hit a large tree, and came to rest over an embankment. Parts of the wreckage were strewn 75 feet from the ruined car. Both passenger and operator were thrown free from the rampaging automobile.

THE NIXON QUESTION

By Joseph Alsop

In a remarkable political pamphlet published this week, Prof. Arthur Schlesinger Jr. acidly describes Vice-President Richard M. Nixon as a "chameleon" with "no political philosophy, no sense of history," who is only preoccupied with the popularity of his public "image."

This grim portrait of Nixon as a hollow man needs to be considered and tested, because of the kind of campaign for the presidency that Nixon has waged to date. If the Vice-President were laying his views on the line as the late Robert A. Taft did, or even as Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has done, Schlesinger could be ignored. But this is not the case.

As described in a previous report, Nixon is using a standard, pre-tested campaign speech, just as Bob Taft used to. Nonetheless, the Nixon-Taft difference is far greater than the Nixon-Taft similarity.

The Taft speech was artless, but it left no room for doubt about Taft's views, policies and character. The Nixon speech is En Route with Nixon artful, emotional, packed with crowd appeal. But Nixon, in the old phrase, "just comes out strong in favor of an early spring and a late fall and against the man-eating shark." You can read into the Nixon speech any kind of Nixon you may fancy, or any doubts you may feel.

> The report describing this curious standard speech of the Vice-President's has evoked cries of outrage from Nixon admirers. But when this reporter suggested that the Nixon campaign to date was almost all salesmanship with little solid substance, it was only a case of saying first, in blunt terms, what the most committed Nixon partisans are also beginning to say.

> On the present safari, in Manchester, Vt., the Vice-President was greeted with an editorial warning him not to try to "tiptoe into the Presidency" from his long-time supporter, the ultra-Right Wing publisher, William Loeb. In New York State, again, "The Binghamton Sun," which has indorsed Nixon, similarly welcomed its chosen candidate with an editorial declaring: "It would be a fine thing if Mr. Nixon were to tell us today just what (are) his concepts....We would like to see him get down to cases about the future of our

In short the void in the Nixon campaign is beginning to be widely sensed. Others are noting this void, beyond the narrow circle of those who must hear Nixon again and again applaud the obviously good, denounce the obviously bad, and offer such phrases as, "We must move forward," or, "America can never be second-best," as his solutions for all problems. The question arises, therefore, whether this void in his campaign means that Nixon himself really is a hollow man.

In this reporter's opinion, tor what it may be worth, Nixon is by no means a hollow man. Heis cool and calculating, certainly. He is also overly given to using the devices of television salesmanship, which can be distasteful in a serious politician. But the Nixon of today also has a viewpoint, a commitment, a philosophy: and these were openly and decisively expressed in Nixon's famous Fifth Avenue Compact with Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

If this opinion of Nixon is indeed correct, it may be asked why this commitment and this philosophy were only expressed by the Vice-President on that one occasion, and have not been heard about in the campaign itself. The answer is plain. Nixon may think like Rockefeller; but he does not wish to offend the Republicans who think like Sen. Barry Goldwater; and he is also entangled in the record made by President Eisenhower.

If Nixon thinks like Rockefeller, it is too bad that he has not talked like Rockefeller. If he had done so, the ground occupied by Sen. John F. Kennedy would have been automatically preempted by the Vice-President. Kennedy would then have been pushed, angrily protesting, way out into left field. But Nixon has sought to avoid offending all the people who would have been bitterly offended if Nixon had campaigned like Rockefeller with President Eisenhower and the group William Loeb belongs to in the lead. So he is seeking victory by salesmanship.

The result, at least thus far, has been a campaign with something of the style of the celebrated "Checkers" speech. In other words, the emphasis is primarily personal and dramatic.

The Nixon audiences hear all about Mrs. Nixon (that heroic woman), and "my old daddy," and what it was like to be in a kitchen with Khrushchev, and how they cheered the Nixons in Poland, and much else that is interesting, even affecting, but irrelevant. Meanwhile, the Nixon audiences almost never hear revelations of attitude and viewpoint, beyond the emotion-charged applause for the obviously good and ringing denunciations of the obviously bad.

This style was effective in the "Checkers" speech; and it was perhaps permissible, too, in a speech of personal self-defense. But is it permissible and will it be effective in a national campaign for the presidency?

The answer to this final riddle is by no means discernible as yet. Moreover, Nixon may sharply amend the style of his campaign, either in the direction desired by William Loeb, or in the direction desired by Gov. Rockefeller. For there is a detectable sag in the spirits of the Nixon entourage; and the sag suggests dawning fears about the long-run effectiveness of the present campaigning style.

THE EDITOR NOTES

LET'S TRADE

It has been reported that the Army would like to have a new armory in the Warren area and it would like to have Warren provide the land. This would be used for training and eventually for a new building.

What happens to the old building? We would like to see the armory on Hickory street, which sits directly behind the municipal building, added to our recreational facilities. Here is a spot that is made to order for the many activities involved in a well balanced program.

In it would be a gymnasium which could be used for sports and for other kinds of enjoyment, such as dancing, music, meetings, and many others. There is a rifle range in the basement. Rooms on the first floor could be used for special activities. There is a shower room and room for the storage of equipment, such as much of our outdoor paraphernalia.

So, let's trade. We will buy a few acres of land on the border of our town for troop training and they can give us their small lot in Warren with its antique armory. For our purposes it is tomorrow. For the army it is yesterday. A good deal.

SUBTLE PROPAGANDA

That probably is not a very good subtitle. We have in mind much of the religious propaganda that is being distributed during these campaign days. It is an insult to a supposedly enlightened public.

One of the worst was received this week. It was an envelope stuffed with "articles that sway men's minds" and on the bottom of the envelope was printed, "Reprinting of these articles is barred to anti-Catholic publica-

New Royalite Portable TYPEWRITER Complete with carrying case

ONLY $49.50 plus tax LONG & STRICKLER Jamestown, N. Y.

Phone 61-501

Which suggests that enclosed are some articles that are for the objective who want to tell the truth about religion in the campaign, the very one-sided view of those we suspect of wanting to win this one in their usual reactionary, stifling way.

Typical in this sheaf of propaganda are such articles as one which asks, "Will Catholics Defeat Kennedy?". And another which is a denunciation of Kennedy by a Catholic priest.

And they have the effrontery to suggest that you use these if you are NOT anti-Catholic.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH WARREN?

A few weeks ago we heard someone suggest a contest through which it might be learned why neighboring residents like to shop in Warren. This seems to be a reverse approach that would offer little constructive advice.

Why not a contest to learn why people do not come to Warren for shopping purposes! The Observer will be happy to provide the funds and the media for learning what others think of us.

We know we are best equipped to run such a contest because we reach far more county readers than any other medium. Our circulation in such communities as Tidioute is five times as large as any competing news-

We would ask the contestants to avoid such answers as: Too much traveling. We know about the mileage. What we want to know is why they go to other communities for their buying.

We propose to pay $50 for the first prize, $25 for the second, and $5 for each of the next five. We could do this for both Warren and non-Warrenresidents. This would offer two approaches, one involving the visiting buyer and the other confined to the resident who leaves town for his purchases.

"Calculated risk" seems to be a popular phrase for old-fashioned "gamble." But there's no place for either in preparing or dispensing pharmaceuticals.

Ever notice the letters U.S.P. or N.F. on a medicine label? The letters represent two official books that are recognized by federal lawthe United States Pharmacopoeia and the National Formulary.

Together they are the pharmacist's "bible." They give approved standards of the quality, purity, and potency of most medicinal agents.

Whatever your prescription calls for, we are prepared to fill it.

60P Had To Switch Policy

By Marquis Childs

NEW YORK. -- When Vice-President Nixon proposed that Senator Kennedy curtail his discussion of America's strength -- or lack of it in the Kennedy view -- during Premier Khrushchev's stay in this country, he took a step that may well be unique in the annals of American politics. In effect, he was saying that the scope of the debate in a Presidential campaign should be limited by the presence of a foreign visitor.

Americans in the past have jealously resented any foreign interference in our elections. A British diplomat, Lord Sackville, was once soundly chastised for venturing to express a preference as between two candidates for President.

Yet a great deal of the comment on Khrushchev's appearance in New York turns on whether by his challenge to the West he has helped to enhance the claim of the Vice-President to experience in foreign policy and therefore has helped his chances of election. Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York was quick to say that the crisis precipitated by Khrushchev's coming here had given Nixon a definite lift.

The very fact that the intervention of Khrushchev, if not in the political campaign then violently and forcefully in the East-West struggle in the United Nations, should be weighed in these terms is a tribute to his power in the world It is a reflection of the uncertainties that beset America, and the implication of doubt over the course that has been followed in recent years seems plain enough.

In one respect Khrushchev has since his arrival dominated the political campaign. By stealing the headlines and filling columns and columns of news he has made the task of the two candidates in holding public attention even more difficult than it was before. And that task had been hard enough even before the presence of this dominating, domineering, often primitively appealing politician.

For that is just what he is -- a politician on a global scale out to win friends and influence people wherever he can. He works at it tirelessly day and night whether he is here in New York, on tour in the Far East, or at home in the Kremlin. To watch him is to see two Krushchevs who complement each other and who by the Jedyll and Hyde rapidity with which they alternate are constantly baffling his auditors.

One is the Marxist-Leninis steeped in Communist orthodoxy who subscribes with childlike dogmatism to the inevitabliity of capitalist downfall and Communist supremacy. This is the Khrushchev who can standbefore the General Assembly of the United Nations and for two and a half hours read a harangue chock-full of all the tiresome old cliches about colonialism and imperialism.

The other Khrushchev is the earthy, resourceful, humorous stump speaker and hand-shaker who could make an impressive dent in the political life of almost any country. President Eisenhower brought him to America a year ago and senthim on a tour of the country. He chafed under official restraints and large, stuffy formal dinners and it was not until he went on his own version of a whistlestop tour in California and got off the train and shook hands and kissed babies that he seemed really in his element.

That visit a year ago and the talks at Camp David that came at the end of Krushchev's crosscountry trip bear directly on Mr. K's eruption in the current campaign. It is against this background that the political consequences of his latest visit must he had an altered status for Berlin. He felt this believe was confirmed when the President said at a press conference just after Khrushchev's departure that the situation in Berlin was "abnormal." At least once again Mr. Eisenhower used that term to describe the divided city and to suggest that the occupation status was outmoded.

Then later in a series of speeches by the President's subordinates this was specifically denied. It was said by the top officials in the State Department that there could be no yielding on Berlin. Even the concessions made in the foreign ministers' meeting of May, 1959, were to be withdrawn Then came the U-2 episode and Khrushchev's friend -- so he had described him to the world -- President Eisenhower, asserted that the United States not only had a right to make such flights but would continue to do so.

With this the two Khrushchevs were fused into one angry man with a strong motivation. both as an orthodox Communist and as a human being whose feelings are close to the surface, to seek vindication. From that moment it was inevitable that Khrushchev, as a symbol of how foreign policy was conducted, should be at issue in the Presidential campaign.

Having counted on peace and prosperity as their fundamental theme, the Republicans were under the necessity of quickly switching to "who can best stand up to Khrushchev." They could hardly have counted on his personal intrusion into the campaign. And they cannot yet be sure whether this is an asset or whether with the sharp contrast between the visit of 1959 and the visit of 1960 it is a lia-

SECOND IN A SERIES . . .

Health, Education and Welfare

This is the second in a series of eight articles by Howard H. Gift, District Manager, Social Security Administration, about new changes in the Social Security law. About 1200 previously ineligible people in Warren and Chautauqua Counties now may become entitled to Social Security

Today I want to tell you about a part of the 1960 social security amendments which does not affect a large number of people, but is most important to those whom it does affect. They are widows, aged dependent parents, and disabled children age 18 and over -- the survivors of workers who died before 1940, who will now be able to collect monthly social security benefits.

Originally, the social security law provided benefits only for retired workers. The law was changed in 1939 to make benefits payable to the survivors and dependents of workers, but until the 1960 amendments, no monthly benefits were provided for the survivors of workers who died before 1940.

Under the new law, payments can be made to the widows of workers who died after March 31, 1938, and before January 1, 1940; to their aged dependent parents; and to their disabled sons and daughters.

To qualify for benefits a widow or dependent mother of a worker

029.92667.03 who died before 1940 must be 62 years of age or over dependent father must be 65 or over. A disabled son or daughter must have a disability so severe that it keeps him or her from doing any substantial gainful work. Also, the disability must have begun before the child reached his 18th birthday.

If you believe that you or someone you know may be eligible to get benefits as a result of this change in the law, remember, payments must be applied for. Call, write or visit your social security district office to ask about making an application. The district office is located in the Hotel Jamestown Building, Jamestown, N. Y.

The third article in this series will discuss earnings while receiving benefits.

HIGH WATER MARK

year's show would be his best and I think that it was. It's pretty hard to top the very first of the Fred Astaire shows because it was -- well, the first. It had impact, freshness, originality. Everything afterwards would have to lose a bit.

But, in the face of all that, this show grabbed you by the throat right at the outset and it never let go. Not only did it set a new high mark for television, but it set a new high mark for anything else. Where else -- on stage or screen or nightclubs or anywhere else -would you see a song number as witty, as stylish, as engagingly exuberant, impishly alive as "Miss Otis Regrets?" There hasn't anything that mixed melody, civilized lyric, charm, style, and grace like that on Broadway since the far off days of "The Bandwagon" (which starred Mr. Astaire) or "As Thousands Cheer."

Then there was that number in which the Fred Astaire dancers spoofed their own versatility -doing Russian, Spanish, gypsy, Calypso, and what-have-you dances. It was a sort of roundelay of the dance and I don't think I ever saw anything like it. Now that the ice has been broken, I imagine a lot of choreographers will do it again.

Again, Mr. Astaire was teamed with Barrie Chase who has greatly improved as a dancer. The body was always something to be reckoned with but the skill with which she uses it has advanced mightily. This time instead of Jonah Jones, Mr. Astaire gave us Count Basie's marvelous band. Basie and Astaire did "Sweet Georgia Brown" together with a delicacy and lightness, fresh as spring water.

Always Astaire presents a blues ballad played and sung --

Fred Astaire said that this but this one, I thought, was just better than the previous one. More complex both choreographically, melodically and storywise, more finished, more complete, more emotionally sat-

> The great thing about the Astaire shows -- all of them -- is that they make no apologies and no stoopings to popular tastes. Mr. A staire does the best he can which is very good indeed (and sometimes just about perfection) and the public digs it all right. Whenever you find a performer worried about the limits of popular taste, you may safely set it down that he's really worried about the limits of hisowntalent.

The other great thing about these shows is that they are pure television. You won't find them anywhere else, and you won't find anything this good anywhere else.

"Witness," (Thurs. CBS-TV 7:30-8:30) the new David Susskind show, is certainly the most interesting and original idea that has come along in some time. This is a taped show that is "a simulated hearing" of a "simulated committee," not a courtroom, not a trial. The principals include some of the most controversial figures of our time. The first, for example, was devoted to Charles "Lucky" Luciano and it's as if a Kefauver him about his whole life. This is a very interesting life. The show had strong elements of the confessions of Zsa Zsa Gabor, "Confidential," and the old Kefauver hearings and I found it fascinating. What the show lacked, I felt, was some sort of clear central motivation. What did this simulated committee want to know all this for? Also. the show -- perhaps understandably -- lacks form. The procedure gets a little chaotic.

committee called him to query

Just the same, as a sort of televised profile, with swift sure strokes, you got quite a portrait of Mr. Lucky. The story about Luciano's rubbing out thirty gangsters scattered in cities all over the country in the same night was news to me. The conclusion, announced with some fanfare, that the hearings had proved Luciano headed the Mafia was malarkey. It proved no such

Telly Savalas was a very tough and convincing and rather loathsome Luciano. The four committee members, all real lawyers who will continue week after week, are Charles Haydon, William F. X. Geoghan, jr., Benedict Ginsberg, and Richard Steel and they were all impressive. (Lawyers are certainly infiltrating television what with the "Verdict Is Yours" and all those courtroom things. Harvard law school will have to add a course on makeup pretty soon.)

Coming up soon are "hearings" on such interesting people as James J. Walker, Bill Fallon, Huey Long (this week), and many others.

Walker, Boy Scout Council training chairman, it is called "Showando" and will be demonstrated at Camp Olmsted for all leaders and committeemen of Boy Scout Troops, as well as Dads of Scouts. Robert Swick is chairman for the event.

"The Showando is a brand new training course', Swick said, "and this is the first time it has been offered in our Council." It is done by a group of well prepared Scouters who 'show' the participants basic Scout skills, then they in turn do them. The course will include: practice in 20 basic Boy Scouting skills; 10 hours of teamwork and fellowship as a patrol; a competitive interpatrol rally; a big chicken dinner cookout; a cooking demonstration. The climax of the course will be the inspirational closing campfire, including a demonstration of Indian dancing by the Order of the Arrow Indian Dance Team.

This is a fast-moving schedule of events, designed to bring the color and excitement of real Scouting skills and competition to the leaders of units. "Fun, fellowship, and furious activity are what we are striving for", says Chairman Swick. It is hoped that every troop in Warren County and Ludlow will have at least one patrol of men participating.

SEPTEMBER SONG

NEW YORK -- The mailbox is a garden in full bloom, bright with the autumn flowers of American letters. Here is a dandy little tome entitled, "Gridiron Cookery," offering advice from coaches' wives on how to open cans on short notice for 200 plastered alumni. Here is ample reading for the lengthening nights -- "The Forward Pass," by Charlie Conerly with Tom Meany; "San Francisco '49ers," by Dan McCuire; "New York Giants," by Don Smith; "You Have to Pay The Price," by Red Blaik with Tim Cohane.

Here in the paper are accounts of bribe offers made to college football players from Oregon and Florida.

No need to check the calendar for a date or note the reddening maple leaves. Here are the unmistakable signs of fall, here is the unimpeachable evidence that football is with us again and culture rides high.

Here also is an illuminating description of a coach instilling self-reliance and resourcefulness into the young -- by making every decision and calling every play himself.

BACK TO THE BOYS

When Oregon State played Southern California in Los Angeles Coliseum, Tommy Prothro, the Oregon coach, and his assistant, Ron Siegrist, sat in a broadcasting booth away up on the remote rim of the stadium watching the action through bino culars.

Prothro wore a telephone headset connecting him with the bench. In front of him were charts, rosters and statistics, Oregon State's operational plans all prepared in advance.

When Oregon State had the ball, Siegrist kept his glasses trained on the U.S.C. defense, hunting soft spots. Before each scrimmage, Prothro selectedthe play and telephoned his backfield coach, Doug Bradley, who relayed the instructions to another staff member, who passed the word to a player, who carried the message to the team.

Under the 1960 rule permitting a team to make one "wildcard' substitution after every play, this sort of coaching from the sideline is legal. Whatever happened to those humorists who used to talk about "giving the game back to the boys?"

PA CORBIN TO

COACH PROTHRO

The title of Red Blaik's autobiography is a profession of faith, an accurate expression of his almost reverential concept of football as a moulder of men. It is his deep conviction that sacrifice is not only essential to a winning effort, but desirable for its own sake, that the maximum reward can be attained only by the dedicated.

A thorough-going professional himself, this great coach believes in professional coaching on the highest level. As he says, "The purpose of the game of football is to win, and to dilute the will-to-win is to destroy the purpose of the game."

Yet Red would be the first to agree that it is over-coaching when the professionals take the game entirely out of undergraduate hands, dictating every move and reducing the players to the status of automatons. Somewhere the line has to be drawn between the antedeluvian era of Pa Corbin at Yale, when the undergraduate captain was the supreme authority, and the coachly usurpation of all initia-

HOW LEADERS ARE MADE

West Point records provide ample evidence to support the argument that Red Blaik's kind of football can help develop and refine a capacity for leadership. It is fair to ask what purpose is served when boys are taught that they are incapable of judgment, unfit for responsibility, mere pawns acting out decisions made by somebody else.

With Prothro calling the shots, Oregon State upset U.S.C., 14 to 0. It was a famous victory, directed by a sterling field general, and if the coach didn't win his letter then there's no

195 Cars Compete In Red Leaf Rally

The local sports car club was again host to the Annual Red Leaf Rally this past week end as 195 cars of various makes turned out to cover a 105-mile course through the colorful hills of northwestern Pennsylvania and southwestern New York. President Earl Abel stated that the affair was a tremendous success as has been the story in the past years. Trophies were awarded to the winners at the Castle Diner in Olean, the spot that marked the end of the route.

The 195 cars that were entered in the affair gathered at Wilder field shortly before the noon starting time on Sunday. The cars were then sent onto the course, one car leaving every 30 seconds.

Winners in the men's division were: first place, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bentley, of Jamestown; second, R. R. Chain, of Pittsburgh, and navigator, Richard Zacks, of Erie; third, Burton Johnson, of Warren, and navigator, Frank Blumquist, of North Warren. These winners of the three top positions were all driving the Triumph sports car.

Tenth place in the same division went to Charles Miller and Robert Miller of Russell who toured the course in a Volkswagen. The prize for the longest time or the greatest number of points was awarded to Mr. Eugene Lunn, of Bolicar, O., and his navigator, Mr. William French, of Dennison, O. They were operating a Volkswagen also.

In the ladies' division Irene Steinbuhler, of Titusville, and her navigator, Charlotte Haskell, also of Titusville, took top honors. Mrs. H. W. Jarvis, of Warren, and Mrs. R. R. Jones, of Jamestown, snared the second place position, and Virginia Kirk and Carol Moore, of Canton, O., were third.

The top three cars in the ladies' bracket were a Renault Caravelle, a Goliath station wagon, and a MGTD.

Sheffield has Home-coming for Unbeaten Team of '37

ratt, supervising principal of burg; L. O. Eisenhauer, high director of athletics; and Lou DeRubies, football coach.

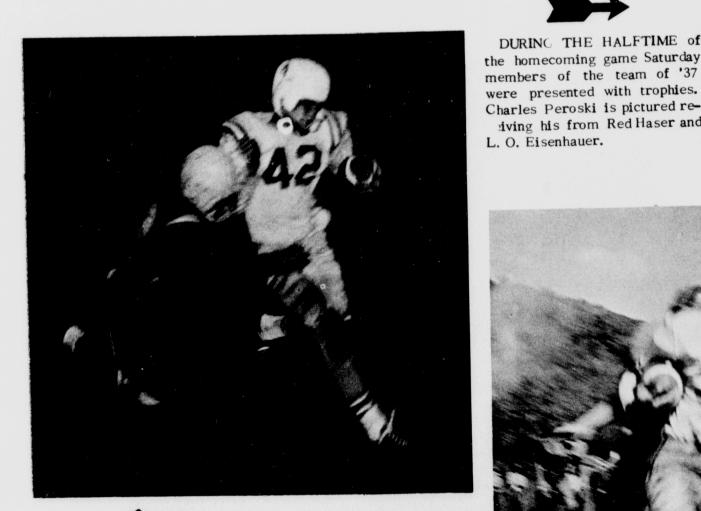

HONORED SATURDAY at the Sheffield Homecoming game was the undefeated Wolverine team of 1937 which was the first and only squad from Sheffield to go through a gridiron season with an umblemished record. The members of the '37 squad, who came from far and near for the Homecoming festivities, were given a smoker Friday evening and were summoned before the fans to be individually honored at the Sheffield-Smethport battle.

All in all it was a very successful venture sponsored by the Sheffield Sports Boosters organization, and the 1960 Wolverines, still undefeated in four outings, added to the luster of the affair with a resounding 48 to 21 victory over the Smethport Hubbers.

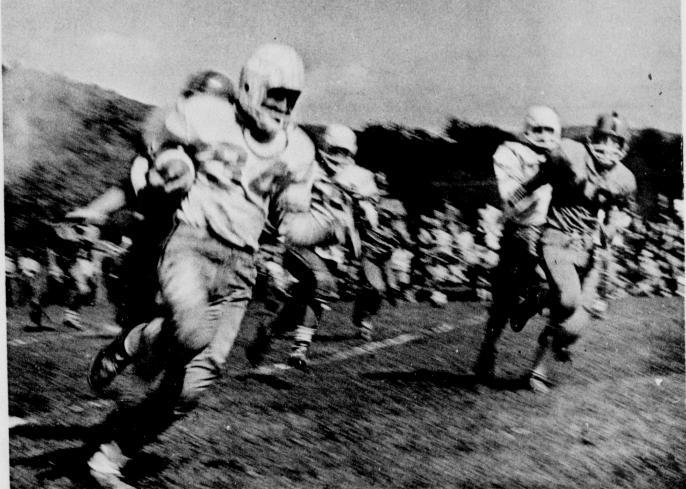

INCOMPLETED PASS. The efforts of two Smethport defensive backs prevented Sheffield's Ted Benson from snaring this Dan Petchel aerial in the first period of play of the Homecoming game. The Wolverines had tried the same pass play on the previous snap from center, but were forced to yield the ball to the Hubbers on downs, one of the few times they had to do so in the 48-21 onslaught.

KIFER GAINS YARDAGE. The Wolverines' Jeff Kifer totes the ball from the Sheffield 45 to the Smethport 30 for a 35-yard gain with two Hubber linemen hot in pursuit. The win for the Wolverines was their fourth straight of the season, and it gave a perfect touch to the Homecoming festivities, sponsored by the Sheffield Sports Boosters.

JAYVEES DROP THIRD STRAIGHT GRID SCRAP

A rugged Kane high school second team slammed the Warren high seconds, 28 to 0, Monday evening on War Memorial field. The visitors scored once in the first period, two times in the second quarter, and once in the last half, each time adding the PAT.

The Kane squad, apparently well drilled, marched with ease through the Blue and White defense, although the locals put up a better battle in the last two stanzas than they had in the beginning half.

Next Monday afternoon the Warren charges are idle, but they will swing back into action on Oct. 17 against this same Kane team up on the hilltop.

LET'S TALK SPORTS

THE PRESIDENTIAL CAM-PAIGN, currently gaining momentum, will now have to take a back seat for the next week or so (we think) to the 1960 World Series. Yes, that time of the year is here once more when production is cut back for 'unknown" reasons, school classrooms become teeming centers of baseball news, the papers devote their headlines to the day's game, and even those persons, whom you may have thought knew nothing of the national pasttime, suddenly are transformed into avid Bucco fans or confess to be members of the never-say-die Yankee cult.

Beginning this afternoon millions of Americans will stare at TV sets in every nook and cranny of the nation as if the wonder of modern-day science is a multiheaded figure of the Ice Age.

And we will be no different, joining the "If-Stengel-wouldhave-done-this" or "If-Murtaugh-would-have-done-that" crowds.

And it would be a solid wager that the Democratic and Republican nominees for president will sneak a peek at television also to quietly cheer their favorites on to victory in the Fall Classic.

THE PITTSBURGH-DES MOINES team of the City Hot Stove League took in the Pirates' game with the Braves this past Sunday which the Buccos won by a 9 to 5 score. The threecar loads of boys and team handlers who made the trip wish to express their sincere gratitude to Mr. Dorn McGrath and P-DM for making the excursion possible.

IN SKIRTS

At the Penn Monday evening Jaye Pappalardo recorded a 559 match with 195 and 190 her high games. Last night Ann Tassone rolled 213-478 in the Ladies' Class C.

MIXED ACTION

For the Friday nighters at the Penn alleys Ernie Wilson led the men with 219-530, while Mary Lowe was high with 444 for the ladies. Tuesday evening in the 400 Block Mixed circuit Bob Morris spilled 479 and H. Pickard 382.

team, found the journey to hold something extra special for him . . . Sunday was prize day at Forbes Field, and Billy came home with one of the gift certificates. . . . a certificate which entitles him to receive a basket of Florida oranges, fresh from the Pirates' training camp in the Sunshine state next spring.

CITY SOFTBALL LEAGUE trophies, won by the Betts Machine and Soda Mineral teams, are now on display in the window of the Warren Bank and Trust building. They will be awarded to the respective teams and sponsors in the near future. . . and the league officials might plan a dinner for the presentations. Let's hear your comments, boys.

ARCHERY SEASON came in like a lamb last Saturday afternoon, with very few of the bow and arrow hunters returning home with prizes. .. . of course, there were very few of the archers in the county who took advantage of the special season on opening day. At least the damp weather took away the very grave forest fire threat that had existed in the past few weeks.

THE SHEFFIELD GRID version of 1960 is certainly a wellcoached unit. . . . we saw them in action against Smethport on Saturday. Tall Dan Petchel, at the quarterback slot, and the even taller Ted Benson, at the right end position, make quite a passing combination, let alone the fact that speedy Jim McNeal adds great offensive running power to the Wolverines' attack. And their strong defense and superb blocking must be noted also.

Be careful, Eagles.

THE DRAGONS almost gave the Oil City team their first win in seventeen games last Friday evening, but thanks to the tremendous arm of Dave Green, the local forces emerged victorious in the last 39 seconds of play. The Oilers' locker room was very gloomy after the heartbreaking loss, as well it might be, and we are not sure just the remainder of the season. S and S Bait Co., of Bolivar.

Thursday the last weekly competition for the men will be staged and the final dinner will be held. Champions and runnersup in the various flights will receive their prizes and there will be special attractions for the anticipated large turn-out.

Last Sunday the final mixedtournament was held. The best golf of the day was a 41 shot by Mrs. John Carter and Bill Rice. The handicap tournament was won by Mrs. Gaston Hamilton and Jim Kannen with a net Mrs. Merle Kremer and Bob Walsh were second with 22.

State Fishing Title At Stake Sunday

The Pennsylvania champion of Sports Fishing will be in Tidioute this coming week end, competing in the state's championship fishing tournament. He will be selected with several other finalists from competition Saturday, and will be officially crowned "Pennsylvania King" Sunday afternoon at 3:30 p.m. near the Post Office in Tidioute. Burgess Eimer Peterson of the river community has consented to do the honors of crowning the king, who will then journey to Houghton Lake, Mich., later this month to enter the World Series of Sports Fishing.

The fishing tournament will commence Saturday morning at 8 a.m. between the Irvine and West Hickory bridges. The Tidioute Water Company, which is serving as the official weigh station, will remain open from 8 a.m. until 10:30 p.m. after which time the judges will select the finalists for Sunday's competition. The winners will then draw numbers to select one of the fifteen referees to accompany them on their final day of championship fishing.

Sunday finalists and referees will meet at the Wildwood Resort shortly before 6 a.m., at which time they will enter the river to begin the final round of the tournament. All final contestants must leave the water at 2 p.m. and must check in their day's catch at the weigh station before 3p.m.

Judges will decide the winner between 3 and 3:30 p.m., and will award the prizes and trophies at 3:30 p.m. at the stand to be located near the Post Office building.

Merchandise prizes to the winners and finalists have been donated by the following: Woolrich Woolen Mills, Woolrich, Pa., Quaker State Refining Co., Emlinton. Pa., Esso Division of Standard Oil Company, Walker Creamery Products, L and S Bait Co., of Bradley, Ill., Animal Trap Co., of Lititz, Pa., Fish and Co., of Salt Lake City, Utah, the Dennison Johnson Co., Mankato, Minn., Fred Arbogast Co., of Akron, O., Beechwood Chemical Co., of Minneapolis, what Blair Hildebrand has in Minn., Jamestown Coca-Cola store for his team throughout Co., Warren Grocery, and the > Cash prizes to the winner and finalists have been donated by the Bell Telephone Co., Penelec, National Forge, Wise Potato Chip Co., and a Walker Creamery Products' driver. These donations will be used to defray the transportation expenses.

The Scott Outboard Motor Co., co-sponsors of the tournament, will award to the winner a huge trophy, emblematic of individual fishing supremacy in the Keystone State for the year 1960. TOURNAMENT SIDELIGHTS:

The Civil Defense Auxiliary Police will be on hand to supervise traffic in the tournament area. . . . the Mountain Grange will serve food and refreshments from Friday evening until late Sunday afternoon. . . . Tidioute retailers will remain open to accommodate the needs of the contestants and sight-seers. . . . and the Fish Commission will patrol the course on both days. Pre-tourney fishing, as expected, is very heavy with hundreds of anglers "feeling out" the better spots on the course. . . and if you have not yet heard, the river has been stocked with several fish of the prize species, Walleyes, Northern pike, muskelunge, and Black bass.

Dragons Win, 20 - 19, In Last 39 Seconds

In Last 39 Seconds
The Warren High Dragons completely amazeda small crowd at Oil City Friday evening as they chalked up a nail-biting 20-19 triumph over the Oilers with an 81-yard touchdown play with 39 seconds remaining in the game. The Blue and White were all but beaten by the Oilers when the left-handed Dave Green faded back to his own end zone and unleashed a tremendous heave. which traveled over 50 yards in the air, to halfback Pat Hartnett, who tucked in the pigskin and raced untouched to the Oil City goal line.

On the crucial extra point try, the Blue and White of Warren elected to pass-the pass from Wooster to Seder being incomplete, but an alert official called interference on the play. John Wooster then barreled over for the PAT and the point which decided the ball game.

Oil City hit paydirt first in the contest on their first series of plays from scrimmage. After the opening kickoff was returned to the Oilers' 49, three first downs moved them to the Warren 13. On a fourth-and-five situation, the ball as taken to the Warren 4, from which point the Oilers' then scored on a pass from Dabroski to Berneberg. A misguided center caused the extra point to go wide, making the score 6 to 0.

Neither team managed to score in the second period of play, but the Blue and White exploded for two big TD's in the third frame. After Seder had taken the kick-off to the Warren 40, he later snared a pass from Wooster for a score, the play covering 67 yards. The PAT attempt was no good, and the score read six apiece.

Later in the third quarter the Wooster-Seder combination brought the pigskin to the Oilers' 35. A few plays later Wooster moved in for a score, but the six-pointer was nullified by an in-motion violation. The Dragons moved toward the goal again, gaining a first down on the two-yard line. From there Dave Green lugged the ball across to give the Warren eleven their first edge in the game. Wooster and Seder again teamed up for the successful extra point.

The thrilling fourth quarter opened with the Warren team moving the ball downfield, After the Dragons had recovered two of their own fumbles, Wooster attempted a short pitch to Chuck Grinnen, but the Oilers' Steve Maher picked off the aerial and raced 70-yards for a touchdown with 7:22 minutes remaining in the game. At this point the Oilers missed an extra point try, which later proved to be the margin of victory.

A Dabrowski-to-Hovis pass later in the same frame netted the Oil City team a six-point lead. The 52-yard pass play was the Oilers' last serious threat to the Warren triumph.

The six young lassies pictured here will be cheering the Beaty football and basketball teams on to victory this season, and we hope that they are as inspirational to the 1960 gridiron team as their 1959 counterparts were, for the Beaty football squad went undefeated in last year's action.

Then came the final series which led to the Blue and White's victory. Behind with less than a minute to go, the same situation which had existed in the Warren-Titusville game, the Dragons had to take the air lanes to pull out the win. Green, with his very effective deep passing ability, was able to connect with Pat Hartnett for the tally which gave Warren its second victory in four sectional football tilts.

93-YARD SCAMPER SPARKS DUKES TO SECOND WIN

A second-period 93-yard dash by Jim Herron, of the Jamestown Dukes, gave the Jimtowners their second win of the season in the area semi-pro football circuit as they defeated the East Lovejoy team, 16-8, before a small crowd at Municipal Stadium Sunday night. Herron's long run, plus Baldy Ericcson two-point conversion, erased an earlier 8-0 enemy lead.

The visitors later gambled and lost in the same stanza as they were stopped on downs on the Jamestown 42. From there the Dukes moved 58 yards for a TD in thirteen plays, Ericcson plunging over the line for the score. The final two points in the contest came on the PAT when Lou Peterson smashed in from the two-yard-stripe.

Neither team could muster any offensive strength in the last half of the contest, and the Dukes gained possession of the ball in the waning minutes of the game to run out the clock.

CONFUSED BIRDS

We recently spent a pleasant evening with friends who consumed much time discussing the respective merits of various birds on the spit. These gourmets of well done fowl were reasonably well informed on what to do with a piece of game once it has been dressed and made ready for cooking, but as often is the case were not very well versed in the birds themselves.

Again we suggest that it would be interesting to listen to an authority on wildlife, and especially the winged variety. So few of us are informed on the wonderland and its occupants which are on every side, and the beauty of which we often praise.

There is much pleasure to be found in the woods, the fields, and on the streams, but it would be so greatly increased if what we saw had some meaning, and if we could indentify whatever we saw. Many of us have been away from the outdoors so many years that rusty minds will not recall what we once knew so well, and a refresher course is in order.

But where do you obtain such information except from unsatisfactory books. On-the-spot identification by those who know can be so much more effective than the printed page which often leaves doubt and befuddlement.

An example of what we mean occurred during the evening mentioned above. There actually were people in this group who have hunted grouse and enjoy eating the same, but they insisted that a grouse is not a partridge. They tried to identify a partridge as some specific bird not seen in this area.

Actually a partridge is a general term which covers many varieties of birds, including the ruffed grouse which we see here, and in the South they will identify the Bob White or the quail as partridge. And they will be correct.

A PUZZLE. Visitors of the Swick site near the new high school have a right to be confused as the newly placed curb and gutter in some places are over one foot below the level of the road and in other places are about the same heighth above the road. Fifth st. will have to be lowered and raised in some places before the storm sewer can be constructed.

My Neighbors

"I've hung your picture on my wall right next to Sophia Loren's."

Such talk moves us to drool a bit and we turn half-hopeful eyes toward the woods again. The birds about to be legal game offer some good shooting and enjoyable meals. The grouse which are fast and nervous, either go up too soon in this area or are well hidden by the close thickets in which they choose to live. Because their shooting is difficult a special season has been added this year and you can hunt grouse against the helpful white snow from December 26 to January 2. This is the same extra season as that announced for bunnies.

Pheasants and quail will be limited to the regular season, October 29 to December 3. You may shoot two pheasants or grouse a day, or eight in a season, and that grouse total is for both seasons. Quail may be shot in larger numbers, four a day and 14 a season.

From there it is up to your taste, and there are some mighty chop-watering ways of serving every one of these birds. Perhaps we will go into that later.

WARREN DRAGONS EDGE OIL CITY, 20 - 19

A CAREFUL LOOK at the clock in the background of this picture shows 39 seconds remaining in the game as quarterback John Wooster sneaks in from the twoyard-line for the extra point which beat the Oil City Oilers, 20-19. The clock had not yet registered the PAT when the two officials (looking like a pair of bank clerks) signalled that the attempt was good.

This was the Dragons' second try at the PAT as an interference call nullified the Oilers' efforts on the first attempt.

SHALL WE DANCE? Ron Seder, No. 19 of the Warren High Dragons, does not believe in getting too chummy with the opponents, but here he appears to be doing a soft-shoe with an Oil

City foe.

Actually Ron had just returned the second half kickoff to the Warren 40-yard-stripe when he was met face-to-face by the
